Adobe Analytics: Digital Analyst

Course Duration 4 days

Description

This four-day course focuses on giving you the knowledge and skills to enable you to become a successful digital analyst. Not only will we discuss the framework within which a web analytics program will thrive, we will also discuss a multitude of reporting examples spread across several industries. This course has been designed to provide you with the broadest possible view without sacrificing attention to very specific reporting and data interpretation scenarios. The best fit for this class would be a student who is either just stepping into digital analyst space or who has a minimum to moderate level of experience with web analytics data or web analytics tools.

Note: Experience with a Web analytics tool, such as Adobe Analytics or other tools, is recommended, but not required to take this course.

Target Audience

Marketers and Analysts who wish to improve their analytical skills.

Testimonials

Himanshu has a very composed and serene way of training people. His knowledge on Adobe Marketing cloud (especially Adobe analytics) is immense. He also makes sure to answer each and every queries that his trainees have. I was glad to have attended the training conducted by him.

Shivanandana Hegde, Analytics Advisory Specialist at Accenture

I took the Adobe Digital Analyst and Adobe Reports & Analytics User courses with Himanshu. Having taken courses with other instructors, I cannot express my appreciation enough for Himanshu's knowledge on the subject- he delivered the course with such clarity, understanding and a real interest in our development. His ability to pace the learning and manage the class it so that we all achieved maximum benefit is no small feat. Extremely impressed by his level of professionalism and am inspired to continue learning with him. Can't thank you enough Himanshu.
